The objective of the department is to enable the students to have a thorough understanding of the mathematical concepts and terminologies of mathematical science. The team consists of 8 faculty and 40 students. The students who have participated and demonstrated their academic talents impressively, shall be honored with certificates and prizes.

About the Conference

Mathematics plays a pivotal role in scientific and Industrial advancement. Now-a-days Graph theory is playing an increasingly important role in the last decades due to growing influences from studies of large networks. Graph theory is a key approach in understanding and for leveraging big data. This conference is being organized with a hope of promoting research scope in this field, to understand and learn the hidden concepts, and to share the important aspects in these topics.

Call for Papers

We invite original research and non published papers related to the topics of the conference which includes various aspects of Graph theory, combinatorics and optimization. Selected papers for presentation in the conference will receive the chance to be published after Peer-review process in the special issue of the scope. Indeed journal Communications in Combinatorics and Optimization (CCO) (ESCI, SCOPUS & WEB OF SCIENCE Indexed [No APC]). Each paper, invited or contributed, will be referred by two experts. Paper must be prepared in LaTeX format (Assign the journal CCO only). Final PDF version of the paper is to be sent through the email mathematics@wawoowajeehacollege.in to the programme organizer.
